ristmas and New Year's plans abound in the foot- village of Sierra Madre many arrangements al- completed this Thanks- g week.

is weekend will find many s participating in the stmas Preview Open e Friday from 6-9 p.m. ll day Saturday. On Friday evening most businesses in Sierra Madre offer snacks for sipping and chewing while area shoppers browse among store items for early Christmas shopping.

A Community New Year's Eve party Dec. 31 is planned by popular demand, the second one in the history of the town. Last year's very successful party that involved not only Sierra Madreans but neighbors from all around the foothill area started a precedent that seems impossible to discontinue.

The Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce sponsors both the Preview Open House and the community party, and plans for the latter are being laid as the paper goes to press.

Marjorie Peterson, last year's New Year's Eve party coordinator, has agreed on an encore. Hugh Campbell and George and Ginny Liskow will obtain talent for the party that begins at 7 p.m. Dec. 31 at the Recreation Hall on E. Sierra Madre Blvd. A food chairman is being sought.

Chamber secretary/manager Ruth Alexander is also actively working on the party which will include dinner to be served from 7-10 p.m. The program will begin after the Sierra Madre Rose Float leaves for its trip to the Tournament of Roses parade line in Pasadena, probably about 9:30 p.m. Dancing follows the hour of entertainment.

A list of opportunities have already been obtained and many others are promised for people to win.

Other Christmas plans include the installation of the creche scene this week in Kersting Court, and a window judging contest Dec. 10 with Marguerite Bowman and Hugh Campbell from the chamber in charge.

Chamber Directors Joe Delgatto Sr. and Jim Clarke are obtaining live Christmas trees to be placed in the red barrels as a repeat from last year. The Merchants Association have placed banners on light standards on Sierra Madre Blvd. They also brought lights to be placed in windows of downtown stores if the store owners wish to purchase them.

The Chamber of Commerce also recommends that business people have their windows painted and urge those interested to contact the chamber office at 355-5111 between the hours of 9-2.

Frank Van Dongen is in charge of Christmas music which will begin mid-December in Sierra Madre.

How About a '48 Reunion?

Sam (Samo) Haskins, a 1948 graduate from rra Madre School, sent a letter to the News Nov. 4 which he urged his peers to join him in a '48 nion next year. And the responses are starting ome in.

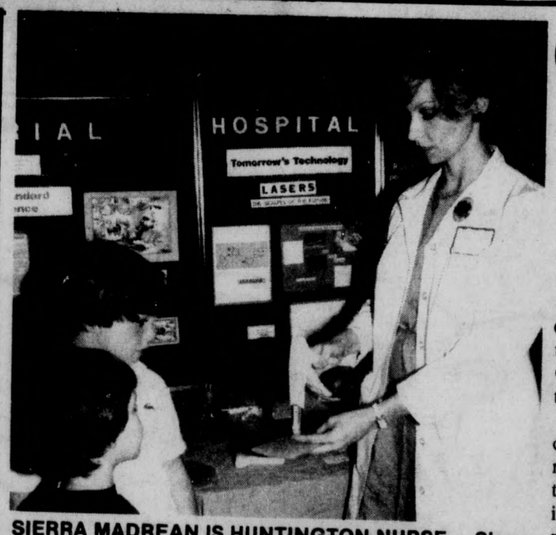

Ash Buchan was the first to see his name in letter from Haskins in the Sierra Madre News, n Diane (Armstrong) Prossen called the News uggest a spring reunion.

The News has agreed to take up the scepter et the ball rolling for a 1948 Sierra Madre School ion.

Diane offered her phone number to those inter- d in a reunion: (213) 659-2160 or that of Carol merling) Callaghan at (213) 454-2611.

Surely there are enough people still in the com- ity who would like to be reacquainted and some would be interested.

Anyone wanting to contact Sam Haskins should him at The Park Law Office, 801 Lincoln , San Francisco, CA 94122.

SIERRA MADREAN IS HUNTINGTON NURSE— Sierra Madre's Sheila Smith, R.N. operating room nurse at Huntington Memorial Hospital, explains surgery procedures to onlookers who came to a special display set up in the hospital's main lobby. The display, part of Huntington's observance of National Operating Room Nurses Day, was designed to inform the public of the role the nurse plays in the operating room.

Council To Decide On Parking, Street Sweeping and Fire Horn

Because the Sierra Madre News went to press before the City Council meeting so that foothill people could have the news early this holiday week, Mayor Pro Tem Clem Bartolai shared his thoughts of how the council would vote on several of the agenda items.

Probably the three most controversial issues are overnight parking, awarding of the Sierra Madre street sweeping contract and the proposed placement of a fire horn in Kersting Court.

Concerning overnight parking in Sierra Madre, the Beautification Committee has been concerned about how many vehicles parked along the streets have permits. In order to discourage all-night parking the group suggested to the City Council that the price of an overnight permit be raised from $12 a year.

In a letter to the council, Barbara Godley, speaking as chairman of the Beautification Committee, recommended that the basic fees for the "necessity" parking be determined by the cost incurred by the police department at the discretion of the department in all phases of investigation, processing and enforcement.

"That any vehicles over and above the ordinance applicable to the one be considered 'convenience' parking and issued permits at a rate we suggest at no less than $15 per month per vehicle," Godley's letter reads.

At the request of the council, Chief Bill Betts completed a study and outlined a program for overnight parking permit renewals to begin Dec. 1. He notes that following application and payment made at the police department, the vehicle will be given temporary parking while the application is being investigated. All applications will receive an on-scene investigation.

Betts says it now takes about 35 minutes per permit application "but with a more extended investigation we can expect about 45 minutes per applicant." Cost? About $18.38.

Mayor Pro Tem Bartolai questions if $24 per year recommendation by the police department is enough to cover actual costs. He adds that application procedures and approval standards concerning overnight parking on the streets proposed by the police "should put more teeth" in the ordinances already on the books.

Relative to another agenda item — the street sweeping contract — probably the most important question concerns the age of the equipment owned by the three bidders for the job in Sierra Madre, Bartolai states.

R. F. Dixon's 1982 machine is without question the newest and he has bid $29,100 per year or $16.72 per mile.

Benjamin McGee, with a 1974 machine, has bid $27,840 per year, $16 per curb mile.

T. J. Burres, the incumbent street cleaner for Sierra Madre, has bid $28,797 which amounts to $16.55 per curb mile.

Bartolai points out that there is a 3% difference between bids.

A letter to the council form city administration says the city does receive "occasionai complaints (about Burres) anf T. J. Burres is capable of satisfactory service with a new stipulation requiring a telephone answering machine or service."

Director of Public Works Thomas P. Kirk believes "the operator is very important . . . and just new equipment does not necessarily assure a better job for that reason." He is in Burres' corner and believes the city should stay with the man they have had in the past.

The next agenda item that might cause some controvery is the possible placement of a fire horn in Kersting Court.

Mayor Pro Tem explains that the reason Kersting Court has been chosen for the location instead of the city yards is because of its central location in town. The horn was originally located in the old city hall. However, since its renovation by developers removal of the horn was imperative.

Is the fire department location at 242 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. another feasible possibility for placement of the horn?

Bartolai says the time clock is missing and now a smaller compressor is required. That could be a major capital expenditure, he explains.

The council will also approve a proclamation for the observance of Bill of Rights Week, Dec. 12 - 19.

The three Rose Float Princesses will be introduced by Helen Walker.

Open House Dec. 9 For Search Hopefuls

An open house is planned for Dec. 9, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for those interested in learning more about becoming Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team members. Open house will be at the Sierra Madre City Hall parking lot, 232 West Sierra Madre Blvd.

Team members must live within 20 minutes driving time of Sierra Madre, be able to leave their job for operations, have an understanding family, be at least 21 years old and be able to pass a rigorous physical examination.

More information may be obtained by calling 355-3303 weekdays 9 p.m. to 5 p.m.

● Marv Buchan is wearing her right arm in a sling these days. She just received a ring from Ash, her husband, for their wedding anniversary that is knocking the socks off all of us.

This week when Ash gave it to her at breakfast, their 7-year-old daughter, Lucinda, said, "Dad, did that ring cost $100?" Ash replied, "All of that." "Did it cost $1000, Dad?" Ash replied, "All of that." Did it costs $1 million, Dad?" Well, not that much, Ash answered.

That morning because of the anniversary celebration, Lucinda was late for school so Mary accompanied her to Anoakia to explain to Lucinda's teacher the reason for her tardiness. Lucinda grabbed Mary's hand and showed her teacher the ring, saying, "Dad says this ring cost $1000."

Her teacher answered, "Yes, all of that."

● Talk about fish stories— we have a beauty. Myrt and Red Waite, long-time Sierra Madre people, were up in Oregon throwing their lines in the water. What did Myrt catch? A whopper thiiiiiis long. It's no story, it's the truth. talking about fish stories, let's all start thinking up a few big lies for the Sierra Madre News Liar's Contest which starts as of Thanksgiving Day. Christmas traditions

Many people think Christmas has become too hedonistic, too nonreligious. But the holiday has always been filled with pagan traditions.

Kissing under the mistletoe, decorating the Christmas tree, even the time of year Christmas is celebrated, have their roots in pre-Christian ritual and myth.

Over the centuries, Christendom has taken pagan rituals and integrated them into its own celebrations, according to professors of religion.

The day now celebrated as Christmas was originally Saturnalia, a Roman feast day honoring the god Saturn. It was a holiday of merrymaking and gift giving.

The Roman New Year celebration may also have influenced our Christmas festivities. During the Roman holiday, homes were decorated with greenery and lights.

Christmas became the most important Roman holiday when, in 325 A.D., at the Council of Nicaea, Constantine made Christianity the official religion of the Roman Empire.

The celebration of the advent of Christ replaced Saturnalia as the major celebration.

"No one knows when Christ was born or where. It was probably in the springtime, when weather was good enough for travel."

In ancient Persia (now called Iran), pagans celebrated the birthdate of the mystery god Mithra, the Sun of Righteousness, on December 25.

Although pagans throughout the world used trees as symbols of celebration long before Christmas, the Christmas tree as we know it originated in Germany.

The tannenbaum— the Christmas tree — came from the Reformation which took place near the Black Forest, where people celebrated everything by decorating with trees and boughs.

German Lutherans originally hung wafers, symbolizing hosts, on their trees. Eventually, the wafers were replaced by cookies and candles. By the 18th century, the custom was widespread. German immigrants introduced the custom in the United States.

The custom of kissing under the mistletoe seems to have been derived from Roman, Celtic, and Teutonic influences.

One tradition holds that the Trojan hero Aeneas, legendary forefather of the Romans, carried mistletoe when he descended into Hades. On his return, the sprig opened the gates and enabled Aeneas to leave safely.

In Norse mythology, an evil god named Loki used mistletoe to kill Balder, the sun god of summer, innocence and purity. Loki convinced Hodur, Balder's blind twin brother, to throw some mistletoe in play. Loki guided the bough so that it killed poor Balder.

But the myth goes on to say that Balder, after the twilight of the gods, will return to a new heaven. Thus, the myth— and the mistletoe— suggests renewal after death.

Mistletoe was important in Celtic ritual, too. On some oaks— which Celts called the tree of life— the parasitic mistletoe grew. When the tree shed its leaves, the evergreen mistletoe seemed the only sign of life. Amid the bleakness of winter, the leaves promised a springtime resurrection of life.

At the climax of a Druid fertility rite, the priest cut mistletoe from an oak, using a golden sickle. Attendants caught the bough in a snow-white sheet. Then the priest and his attendants sacrificed a pair of white bulls.

Today's custom of kissing under the mistletoe is a somewhat tamer ritual derived from the ancient fertility rite.

I hate telephone soliciting. In fact, the only soliciting I do like is illegal.

It really annoys me. It's like paying $26 to have one of their salesmen installed in my den.

When Alexander Graham Bell made his first telephone call, he won ten free dance lessons.

Salesmen love telephones. No salesmen has ever had his toe broken by having a telephone slammed on his foot.

It's much easier than door-to-door sales. They save gas, they don't have to dress up, and they can never be shot by a husband who comes home early.

I'd never buy anything from anybody calling long distance. I know in the long run I'm paying for the phone.

● John Meyer, former Sierra Madrean, called to tell us he was media coordinator and volunteer at Pasadena Mental Health. He reminisced that his dad, Edwin Meyer, had Meyer TV here in Sierra Madre for years. John moved with his family to the town in 1945 and left 20 years later.

He also said that he used to come to the back door of the Sierra Madre News to pick up waste lead so he could make lead soldiers and add them to his collection. He still has a very warm spot in his heart for Sierra Madre.

● Anyone remember Joanne Agee's son Rob? He and his wife Debbie had a baby boy Monday, Nov. 15. The baby's name is Jamie Ian.

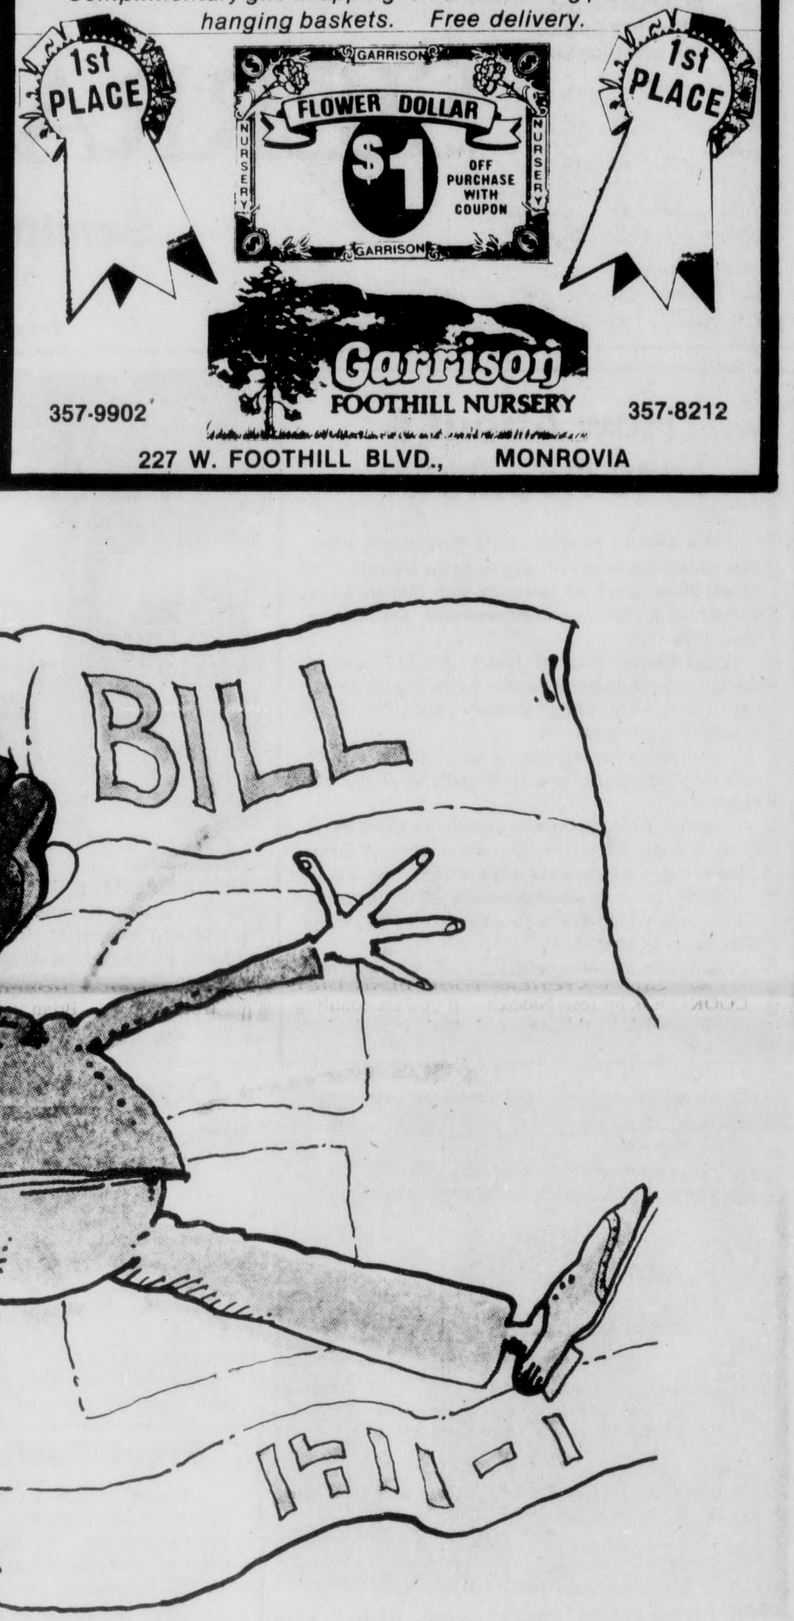

● Gertrude Gerke, our resident historian, tells us there is a bird bath in Memorial Park. More than that, she tells us why and when it was erected.

According to the Dec. 30, 1932 issue of the Sierra Madre News, the turquoise blue porcelain bird bath with a tile base was purchased in memory of Cornie Whitney Hart.

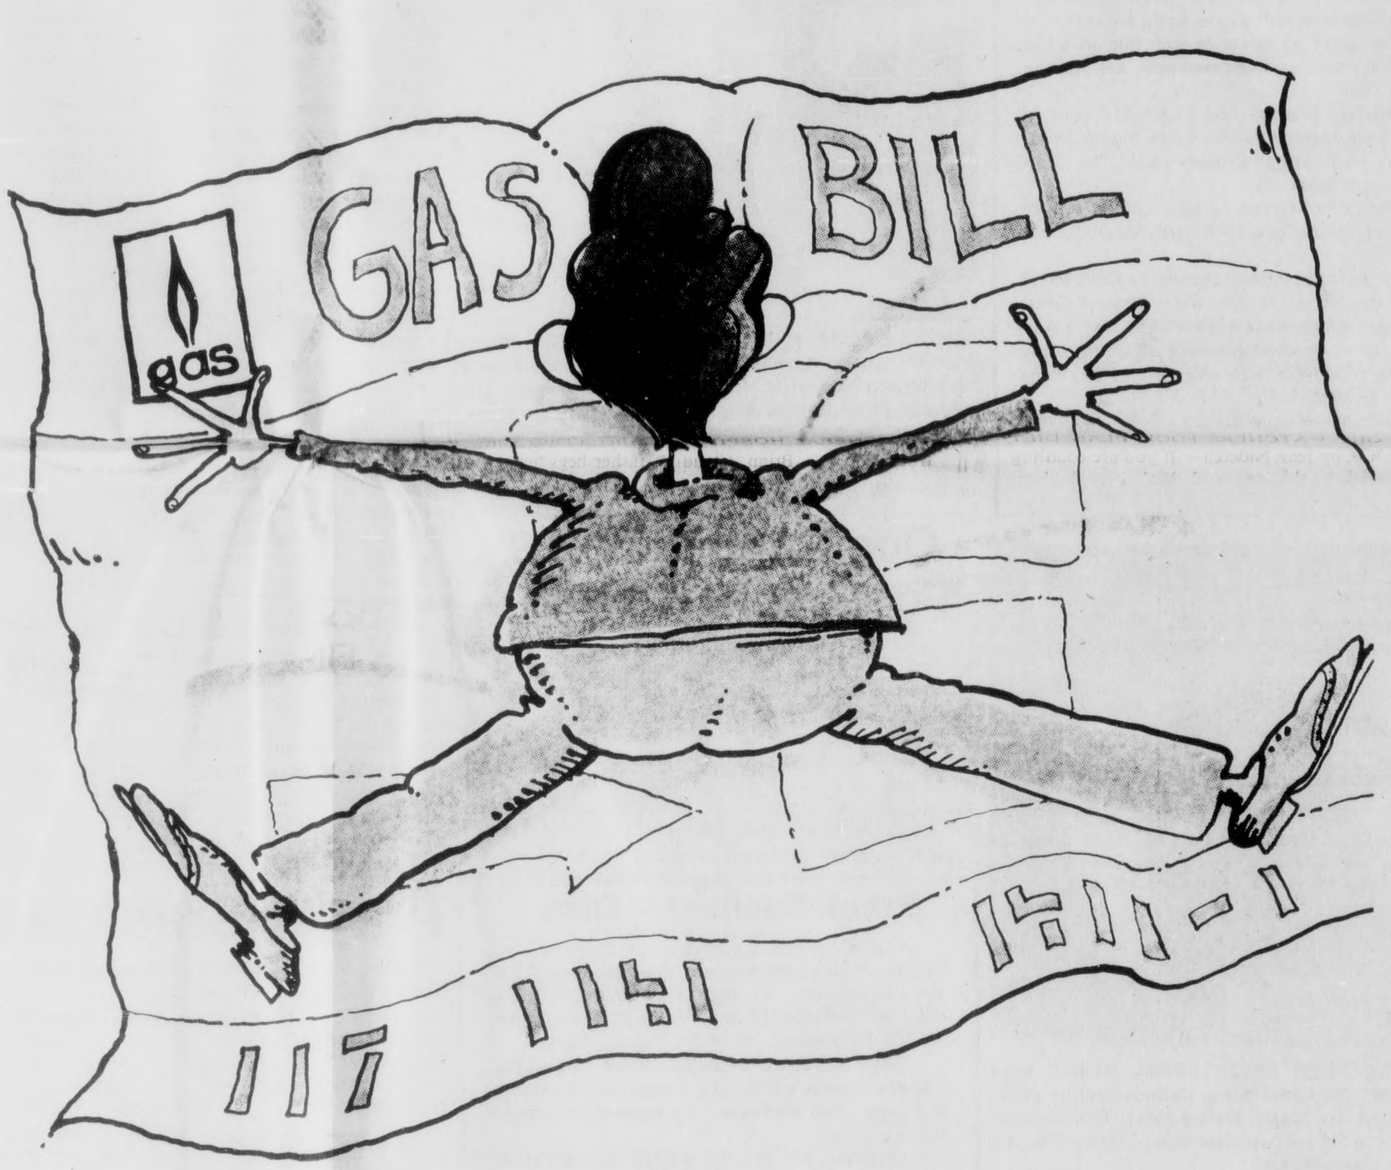

The bird bath is located near the Boy Scout Memorial on the Sierra Madre Blvd. side of the park.

What to do when you're hit by a big gas bill.

Unfortunately, gas rates are going up.

On top of that, the forecast is for a cold winter.

So even if you've insulated and kept your thermostat at 68 degrees, you're going to be hit with a bigger gas bill.

But we can help you avoid getting hit so hard in the future.

After you pick yourself up, start looking for other ways to save gas. Like weatherstripping and caulking. Installing a low-flow showerhead. And wrapping your water heater in an insulation blanket.

Then call the Gas Company for even more gas-saving tips.

He worked as an apprentice painter for seven years, and became a U.S. citizen in 1957. He married Swedish-born, May-Britt in 1958 and they have two children, Lavonne, 21, and Orla, 18.

For the past 18 years, Pedersen, a developer, has lived in Arcadia.

In 1973 he joined the Arcadia Rotary Club. He served on its Board of Directors for four years and in 1978 became International Service Chairman. As the chairman of this committee he helped establish a project which served to build good will with our close foreign neighbors in Tijuana, Mexico.

Together with the Tijuana Rotary Club, the House of Hope Orphanage was chosen as a needy establishment. Soon after, Pedersen, along with 12 other Rotarians, made a trip to this orphanage and with donated materials, painted the inside of the House of Hope.

Within the same year the International Service Committee befriended yet another orphanage, Lazaro Cardenez.

This orphanage had no sanitary facilities. Pedersen and Rotary volunteers spent time in the facilities and installed a septic system and toilets for the children. They also traveled south across the border during the Christmas holidays in a truck carrying 2½ tons of clothes, food, and gifts for three orphanages located in the Tijuana area. Santa Claus handed out the bounty at the Christmas parties to 250 children.

During the last five years Orla and the people who have become involved with this project have donated a 7500-gallon water tank and built a $30,000 building complete with kitchen, dining room and restrooms, all of which have been underwritten by donations from Rotarians and interested citizens of the community.

When speaking about this massive endeavor, Pedersen makes an interesting point.

"The work orphan is probably a misnomer in Mexico, because people are so poor they can't afford to take care of their children. Often the mothers will bring their children to an orphanage and ask that they be taken care of. Maybe a few years later, when they are at a productive age, the mother may come back for them. Therefore, it's practically impossible to adopt a Mexican orphan."

Pedersen explains that what started out as a program for 1978 has mushroomed over the last five years. This year it expanded to what is now known as "Rotary Amigos," a sponsorship program that allows any family or individual to sponsor a child for $15 month.

Orla recalls a visit to one of the Mexican orphanages where the night before, dinner consisted of nothing but potatoes. The following night dinner would consist only of the potato peels from the night before. "It's not unusual to find the cupboards bare in these places," he said.

This project has been all-consuming and very rewarding for Orla, and he encourages anyone interested to contact the Arcadia Rotary Club.

Pedersen was the 1980 Rotarian of the Year and was honored three years ago by the club when he was made a Paul Harris Fellow.

A.F.S. Students Share Experiences

By Marilyn Churchman

Five Arcadia High School students were chosen as A.F.S. representatives from the United States to spend the summer of 1982 in five foreign countries.

Those students from Arcadia who spent their past summer abroad were Amani Sawires, Shelley Mathisen, Sean Murphy, Mike Yeh and Heidi Biersch.

Amani Sawires is a 17-year-old Arcadia High School senior who hopes to attend one of the University of California schools and eventually get into foreign service.

She spent the summer in Uruguay, one of the smallest countries in South America. The capital of Uruguay, Montevideo, holds 45% of the country's population.

Amani lived in the city of Artigas which was about half the size of Arcadia, and a 10-hour drive from the capital by car. Because the seasons are different in South America, school was in session while she was there. Attending school in Uruguay helped her perfect her Spanish.

Shelley Mathisen is an 18-year-old who now attends Occidental College. She is an undeclared major there presently, but is continuing her study of the Spanish language.

She also spent the summer in South America in the city of Caramarca, Peru, which as she describes it is "a car sick 15-hour bus ride from Lima, the capital of Peru."

Shelley arrived in Caramarcos complete with two pairs of long underwear only to discover the temperature was 65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Her host family, the Nicolesas, owned a pharmacy and a barbecued chicken restaurant. She lived on the second floor of their establishment. The kitchen was on the ground floor and was inhabited by five dogs, one cat, two pigs, one hen, one rooster and two little birds.

Sean Murphy, a 17-year-old Arcadia High School junior, hopes to attend UC Davis to obtain a veterinary degree.

He spent his summer in the second smallest country in Central America, Costa Rica. Sean lived in Curridabat, a small suburb of the capital city which is San Jose. He lived with a family of five and learned the traditions and cultures of Costa Rica. His host family provided him with two younger sisters and a little brother.

"Getting to know Costa Rica and its people was an experience I will always remember," Sean states.

Sixteen-year-old Mike Yeh is a junior at Arcadia High School. At this point in his life he knows he wants to attend college, but hasn't made any decisions as to what college he will attend or as to where his future endeavors will take him.

Mike spent his summer in Italy on the A.F.S. two-family program. With his first family, he lived in the northern Dolomites in a town called Cortina d'Ampezzo, a well-known Alpine Ski resort where the 1956 Olympics were held.

"Cortina was a town steeped in tradition," Mike explained. "They had a town band, festivals, concerts and athletic competitions."

He traveled to Venice for the second part of his summer. His host family was on vacation and he stayed at the Lido de Venezia which is the beach of Venice. Since Venice is built on a series of small islands, it is totally water-oriented.

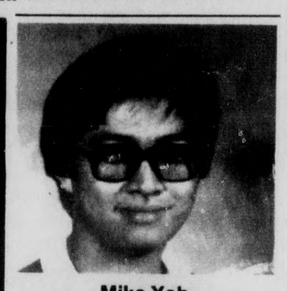

"Not too many people have been stuck in a traffic jam with two water busses and three gondolas under the main bridge of Venice, but I managed it," he laughs. He feels that being an A.F.S.er requires flexibility and stresses the growth obtained from the experience.

Eighteen-year-old Heidi Biersch graduated from Arcadia High School last year and now attends UC Berkeley. She is majoring in foreign languages and hopes to go into international business.

Heidi spent her summer in Madrid, Spain, arriving with the usual trepidation of a newcomer, dictionary held tightly in her hand. She left with tears in her eyes remembering the cobblestone streets, the cathedrals, the parties and especially friends, and the special smells; Sangria and tortillas.

She brought back with her her memories of the historical sites she had visited and the style of the Spanish people she had been privileged to spend some time with.

In summing up her trip she states, "It involved lessons in endurance and the crafty use of intuition. They are the same elements that form the basis for all dramatic learning and growth. I have truly learned much and believe I have grown as an individual. Adios Espana!"

Hamilton Improvements

Cost of the project is $190,000. The improvements are part of those recommended by neighborhood organizations and user groups, and as identified in the Park Master Plan.

According to Arthur Krieger, Pasadena director of public works, "Hamilton Park improvements should be completed before the New Year."

The project began in October and includes widening of the parking lot to increase its capacity, and improved parking lot lighting.

Achievement Youth To Sell Products

Students from the Pasadena High Schools— Marshall, Muir, and PHS— have formed "Classic Crafts," a Junior Achievement Company in which high school students learn the basics of business. They form their own business, sell stock, elect a board of directors and manufacture products for sale.

This year Classic Crafts is making bulletin boards and sachets. Every Wednesday night Victor Ortiz, Brian Frank, Randall Johnson, Kenneth Belcher, Nicole Turner, Robyn Turner, Anton Conley, Oliver Simpson, Tanny Keaton, Andre Dillingham, Chris Raneses, Lori Matter, and Andrea Hull meet at PHS to make the products and learn basic manufacturing and marketing practices. They are assisted by advisors from the Ralph M. Parsons Co. and Engineering-Science Inc.

Betty Junvik who operates Little Stuga in Sierra Madre has offered to display the sachets made by the students.

New Owners Say 'Nice'

Jennifer Bird and Heather Griffin stop to talk with Jon Henri, Highlander.

We've been hearing for sometime that the Highlander Liquor Store is changing hands and this week the truth won our — Sylvia and Paul Savedra from Monterey Park took over from long-time Sierra Madrean Coleman Jones as of Nov. 17.

These new owners are new to the liquor business. According to Sylvia, they have been looking for a business to buy for awhile and "happened to run across the Highlander, and decided to buy it."

The interview with Sylvia was sporadic since she was busy stopping to wait on customers and discuss new wares with salesmen as they came and went.

When Sylvia apologized for not knowing immediately where something was kept, a customer grinned and told her where it was kept. He said, "I've been coming to this store for 15 years so I know where everything is."

And how is the community treating them? "Super nice. Everybody has lots of patience," Sylvia answers.

The Monterey Park couple has two employees who stay with them for the seven-day week with hours from 8 a.m. to 9 or 10 p.m. They are carrying wines, liquors of all kinds, and plan to come up with some Christmas baskets

That's the way it's been for the Savedras this last week — getting to know their store and getting to know within the next couple of weeks.

They will stay in Monterey Park for awhile until the newness wears off their liquor store, then they will try to find a place to live closer to the store.

The Savedras have two daughters.

Welcome these brand new business people to Sierra Madre and tell them we're glad to have them. They are located at 303 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.

Happy's Features Specialty Baskets

You want a basket of goodies? You need to order a basket of goodies for somebody? Your wish is granted if you stop at Happy's Liquor located at 12 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.

It was about four decades ago when Leo Mendel decided to open a liquor store. His son, Harvey joined his father and a year later, Harvey, working in Monrovia went out on his own. And two years later they expanded to Sierra Madre.

Harvey remembers that the first month's sale was $67 worth of liquor, but the second month brought double the receipts. Soon they were making sales in four figures, and the business has been climbing ever since.

Harvey and Marshall recall that total inventory opening day in Sierra Madre in 1938 was $400. Marshall ran the store here and a generation later, Harvey's daughter, joined the team. Then when Tracy Miller turned 14, he joined the family business. He's Marshall's grandson.

Talk about family businesses, here's one that has three generations. Carol began as bookkeeper and learned the hard way— by doing. Her job has expanded into artist, however, since she began doing the extraordinary Christmas baskets the store does each year. Last year was the turning point when the basket business boomed, and this year it is following in the same pattern.

How does Carol know what people want? They usually choose every item in the basket. Sometimes the customer wants specialty wine, sometimes wine and liquor combinations. Sometimes fruits and cheeses are added to the colorfully decorated basket. And sometimes the customer wants no alcohol at all, just fruits, crackers and cheeses.

Where does Carol get her talent for these extraordinary gift baskets done up with ribbons and bows, cellophane and confetti?

From experience, she laughs. "I just try to customize and personalize each basket so everyone feels he or she is getting something unique," she says. Last year they were indeed inundated with orders and "I loved every minute of it," Carol smiles. They are looking forward to a great year again during this 1982 season.

For a unique alcohol or non-alcohol gift, stop at Happy's Liquor.

Christmas Plant Actually a Parasite

Although mistletoe conjures romantic or sentimental thoughts in the minds of many people, to others it invokes visions of weakened trees threatened by this parasitic plant.

Mistletoe thrives by removing moisture and nutrients from host trees, says Clyde Elmore, weed scientist, UC Cooperative Extension, Davis. It not only weakens trees but can cause them to die if they are diseased or stressed for water. It should be eradicated, he says.

Common mistletoe grows on ash, walnut, birch, elm, maple, locust, cottonwood, buckeye and a few other fruit and nut trees. Green or broadleaf mistletoes are found in oaks, cypress, white fir, incense cedar and western juniper. Dwarf mistletoes infest several species of western conifer trees.

Mistletoe propagates and spreads only by seed. Birds feed on the small, waxy white berries but are unable to digest the seeds which have a sticky white coat. These seeds, dropped by the birds, adhere to tree limbs, then germinate. Seeds may also be spread from seed clumps to other tree branches.

The seeds send rootlike structures— called haustoria— into the growing tissue of the tree and take moisture and nutrients from it. Mature clumps of mistletoe may be several feet in diameter and have many points of attachment from a single plant.

By cutting off all mistletoe growth at the point of attachment each dormant season when the plant is easy to see, you can prevent seeds from being produced, Elmore says. Although it temporarily suppresses the plant, it does not eradicate it.

For effective control, Elmore recommends pruning out all infested tree limbs each year. Cut off one foot or more below attachment points, preferably at the nearest crotch.

If mistletoe sprouts from a point that cannot be pruned, cut off the growing part of the parasite, flush with the tree limb or trunk. Then wrap the point of attachment with a band of polyethylene wide enough to exclude light and tie with twine or flexible tape. Mistletoe cannot survive without light and will die within a year or two. The covering material will eventually rot and drop off.

ike Kids? Open a Toy Shop

'If you like kids, you'll the toy business," was paraphrase Delores Quirk d to describe how the em- yees at Toytown, located 8914 E. Valley Blvd. in emead, feel about the iness they're in.

nd that philosophy is a ction from the man who sponsible for the entire ness, Arcadian Murray k who founded the store ears ago.

'all-to-wall toys are fea- d within the 18,000 square of space, for big and lit- children, and for adults, ores Quirk laughs. They everything from tiny toys 50 cents to computers h hundreds of dollars.

d now that business has vn to 25 employees during 10 months of the year and 40 during the Christmas season.

Delores has been with the Zwicks since 1969 and stayed that long because of the "nice family atmosphere between the employees."

The owner, Murray Zwick, is manager of the store and also does most of the buying.

"A few of us help but Murray and Betty Zwick do most of it. Sometimes they go on buying trips but mostly company representatives call on us here," Delores says.

Sizes of toys? Well, they vary, too. The largest "toys" they have are the above-ground pools that are 20' x 40'.

Zwick operated grocery and variety stores before he decided to change directions and go entirely into toy lines.

"We try to give the customers service, variety and quality," Delores explains. "We have people shopping here for their grandchildren who started shopping here when they themselves were children. People always seem to come back here to shop because of the variety of things we have."

Adjoining stores house businesses for the Zwick's sons, Howard, Raoul and Bernard.

Howard Zwick has Toytown Sports Center and Raoul has Pooltown with spas, tubs and associated items. Bernard Zwick has Baby Toytown (three stores of them) carrying juvenile furniture, cribs, strollers, that end of the business.

Murray and Betty Zwick have nine grandchildren, also.

Leila Valentine, Heather Griffin and Rene Gutierrez enjoy the swings at Toy Town.

League Thanks Sponsors

The Little League committee recently announced a reduction of $50 for sponsor fees for next year as an incentive toward interesting more sponsors. President Matt Cook joins the rest of the parents in appreciation for the 1982 support.

Mike McGoldrick, the field representative on the Little League committee, has announced improvement plans for Heasley Field. They hope that concerned parents will assist the committee during scheduled work days. The committee plans to give prospective workers a month's notice.

Service Answer To Merchandising

Everyone in the foothill area knows Ralph and Ann Hurwit who own Ralph's Shoe Store so there are no questions about the store that haven't been answered during the nearly four decades since the store has been in existence in Sierra Madre.

However, to try to pin down a few more reasons why people should shop at the shoe store, we asked a few people around town how they felt about Ralph's service.

Everyone agreed that his store was where you stopped to rest on your way up the hill. And you stopped there on your way down the hill, too. It's a place where you chat about what's happening in Sierra Madre while you're buying shoes or purchasing hose.

One friend came up with a true story that seemed to describe why Ralph's Shoe Store is definitely the place to shop.

She was on her way to an important business meeting when a strap on one of her shoes gave way. She looked at her watch and realized it was just 9 a.m. and she wondered if there was any chance Ralph would be open that early.

There he was, sweeping off the sidewalk in front of his store.

She told him she needed a new pair of shoes immediately . . . her old favorites which she had bought from him a previous year has just given out . . . and she was already late for a very important date.

No problem, Ralph said. Yes, he had comfortable shoes much like the other style. The only problem, however, was that they came in tan only, not in black as she needed.

What was she going to do? She needed black.

"I could dye them and you could stop for them later today," he suggested.

No, she needed them immediately.

Dyeing would take some time because he had to mask the soles.

No problem, our friend replied. She would mask the soles while he dyed.

So there they were, an assembly line going while people milled in and out of the store.

Within a short time she had her black shoes, shiny and new, and was off to her meeting just a few minutes late.

That's the kind of service we mean when we talk about Ralph's Shoe Store.

Green Thumbs Run In the Family

Where did the Arrangers, a Sierra Madre flower shop, begin? Linda Heaton laughs and says, "I've always been in the floral business. When I was up north I was hired by a florist shop manager as a cashier but within a week, the owner of the shop asked me to begin designing bouquets. That's what I have been doing ever since, moving from the north down here as manager of two different floral shops in the valley."

Heaton has been in the business for 12 years and six years ago she and her sister, Micki Porretta, opened a shop in Pasadena. That went well and they decided to move to their hometown, Sierra Madre two years ago. They will celebrate their second anniversary in February, 1983.

Micki left an administrative job as computer operations manager at Jacob's Engineering to join her sister in the flower business.

"She started from scratch and now does all types of floral work. Micki designs many of our flower creations and also takes care of the paper work for our shop, The Arrangers," Heaton explains.

What is different about their shop? Micki acts as a flower consultant and actually travels to people's homes. They also do a specialty that other shops rarely do—they create animals out of flowers. Recently they put together a map of Italy in flower form for a client. They also have balloon bouquets.

How do they feel about their floral shop located at 64 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.?

Heaton says, "It's great to own your own shop. What you do is for yourself. It's lots of hard work but it pays off. We love it here."

Heaton also works part-time as a paste-up artist at the Sierra Madre News.

Both girls are products of Mary and George Maurer.

General Tel Increases Rates

The California Public Utilities Commission today granted General Telephone authority to increase rates $50.7 million a year beginning Jan. 1 to offset an expected attrition in earnings during 1983.

Attrition allowances are normally granted to California utilities every other year to give them an opportunity to earn the rate of return on investment the PUC last found to be reasonable. In General Telephone's case, the last authorized return was 12.78%, set on June 15.

Group W Works Toward 9.5 Rating

Although Group W Cable TV has been here in Sierra Madre—under the name of Teleprompter— for 14 years, to Manager Rusty Faust it's brand new. She has been the manager here since September.

"I feel during the time I've been here, we've made great strides in the service area. I would like to think in the near future when we've finished our rebuild, we can concentrate more and more on our everyday service to customers. On a scale of 10, we will soon be 9.5," Faust said this week.

She grins and says, "We have a long way to go but that's what we're striving for."

She explains that the rebuild in Sierra Madre is completed and right now the company, recently purchased by Westinghouse, is working on rebuilding Arcadia. They hope to have that completed within a month so that as of Jan. 1, 1983, "we should be getting our act together," Faust says.

It has been a long pull for the company that nearly had its franchise revoked by the Sierra Madre City Council after many members in the community complained about the service. However, the company is working toward a turnaround, and at present 28 people are working full-time and part-time at the company located at 35 Baldwin Ave.

Also new to the company is Alexandra Smith, local origination program director who started in May.

"She is working more and more in the community producing programs for showing. Right now we are showing City Council meetings live and are also taping for later showings," Faust says.

The company is also preparing and showing an eight-week crime prevention show co-sponsored by the Sierra Madre Crime Prevention Committee. They will complete the series in February.

Group W now has three TV cameras and a video van that is really a traveling studio, Faust explains. Behind the office are two "dishes," an earth station and an antenna that catches the signal from the top of the hill and the satellite.

een Zirkle grew up in the macy business since her owns a small chain called Buy Drugs. She reports she joined the business ars ago.

all really started for her, ever, when she was part work education program g high school sixth per- she chose pharmacy. not? And from there as built a career that mpasses her rising from a drug clerk, to selling cosmetics (she has her cosmetology license) and is now an integral part of the business, traveling from store to store as a trainer.

"I love the retail business," she said this week. She particularly enjoys cosmetics and worked on the Universal lot learning more sophisticated cosmetology before obtaining her AA degree in business.

"Here at Best Buy we cater to special service— personal service. We've never turned anyone down on a product. We have delivery service, personal charge accounts, and we accept credit cards and insurance for prescriptions. We try to work with people," Zirkle states.

Hal Evans, a pharmacist who has been located at the Sierra Madre pharmacy for 12 years, is their secret weapon, she says.

Evans has been with the company for 20 years and "our clientele love him. When he's on vacation, we're dead. He's the one that made the store. He is Best Buy Drugs."

Zirkle says, "My brother and I were raised in this area. We have a family-owned business that means a lot to us. We have a full line of drug supplies, cosmetics, fragrances, name brand toys, sewing notions, American Greeting greeting cards, stationery supplies, baby supplies, paper back books and magazines, health and beauty needs."

What's different about the store? You can get almost anything you need there, she explains. And she is very enthusiastic about a new full-color catalog they have just published.

They are located at 82 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.

Pecan Crisps
S. Jane Buchan

This recipe was given me in 1955 by a 94-year-old woman who crossed our country with her parents in a covered wagon.

1 tsp. soda	1c. brown sugar
½ tsp. salt	1 c. white sugar
3 tsp. vanilla	1 c. butter
1 c. chopped pecans	¾ c. shortening
3 well beaten eggs	4-½ c. flour

Cream sugar and butter and shortening. Add the beaten eggs and cream well. Blend sifted flour, soda and salt and add to creamed mixture. Add vanilla and mix well. Add nuts.

Make two rolls (or logs) and press into rectangular lengths. Chill overnight. Cut very thin and bake as neede at 350 degrees for about 12-15 minutes. May be frozen and sliced and baked as desired.

COZY SETTING OF MASTER BEDROOM IN ARCADIA TOUR— Enjoying the cozy setting in front of the hearth in the master bedroom of the Victor Zonver home are Fran Zonver and Jerri Riblet, 1982 Tour chairman. Marilyn Leech of Arcadia Florist will decorate this home.

Shop Deals in Equipment , Classy Cameras

When you walk into Santa Anita Camera Shop you will always speak with a professional. The three men behind the counters are professional photographers besides knowledgeable store clerks.

Frank Reagan started Santa Anita Camera Shop, located at 1119 W. Huntington Dr., 33 years ago when the El Rancho shopping center was first built.

It's no wonder he chose that type of business to open since he had been interested in photography as a hobby when he was a youth. Then he served as a photographer in the U.S. Navy, aboard the USS Hornet during WWII.

He was a commercial photographer both before and after the war, he says, then decided to go into the business of selling supplies to other camera buffs.

Bob Spellman has been with him for 15 years and recently filmed the landing of Columbia, the space shuttle, at Edwards Air Force Base.

Lloyd Martinez has been a part of the team for six years and now commutes from Long Beach.

When asked to name the variety of their wares, Reagan said they carry everything from cable release to tripods and other sophisticated attachments. They also have a complete line of dark room equipment. He says they specialize in camera equipment although they also have a wide variety of cameras.

The amateur and professional can find anything he or she needs as well as all types of video, motion picture and still cameras.

The store is about to be enlarged another 15-18 feet, Reagan says, so that it will match the other stores in the shopping center.

Reagan has been an Arcadian for over 25 years and Spellman lives in Duarte.

Hospice Plans 'Light-Up'

Hospice of Pasadena is presenting the first annual "Light-up-a-Life" Christmas Tree with a tree-lighting ceremony on Thursday, Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Santa Anita Fashion Park Center Court. The tree will be in front of Buffums downstairs.

A tax-deductible gift of $10 will light a bulb on the massive Hospice Christmas Tree which will burn from Dec. 9 through Jan. 1 in memory of a departed friend or loved one.

Among the celebrities expected at the Santa Anita Fashion Park tree lighting ceremony on Dec. 9 are former Los Angeles Ram football star Merlin Olsen,

David May pausing between pancakes for his recipe.

Swedish Oven Pancake
David May

4 eggs
1 qt. milk
2 c. flour
¼ lb. butter
1 tsp. salt

Beat eggs using a whisk until frothy. Add milk, then flour and mix well until lumps are gone.
In a 9 x 13 pan melt the butter (don't brown). Pour mixture over melted butter and bake 30-45 minutes—until golden brown and puffy in a 425-degree oven. (An 8 x 8 pan would take ½ of this recipe.)

For a richer cake you can use 1 egg per serving. This recipe serves 8 adequately.

Use syrup or jam or jelly on your "pan cake." With some fresh fruit, crisp bacon and coffee you have a super brunch.

THANKSGIVING

By Joe Delgatto

A time for Thanksgiving.

Thankful that we are here in a wonderful, free country.

Grateful for all the opportunities our country gives us.

The rest is up to us!

We must sustain our kind of freedom and deserve the opportunities it affords us.

If you're having a festive occasion at home with all the folks, let us help you get table linens and wardrobes ready for use.

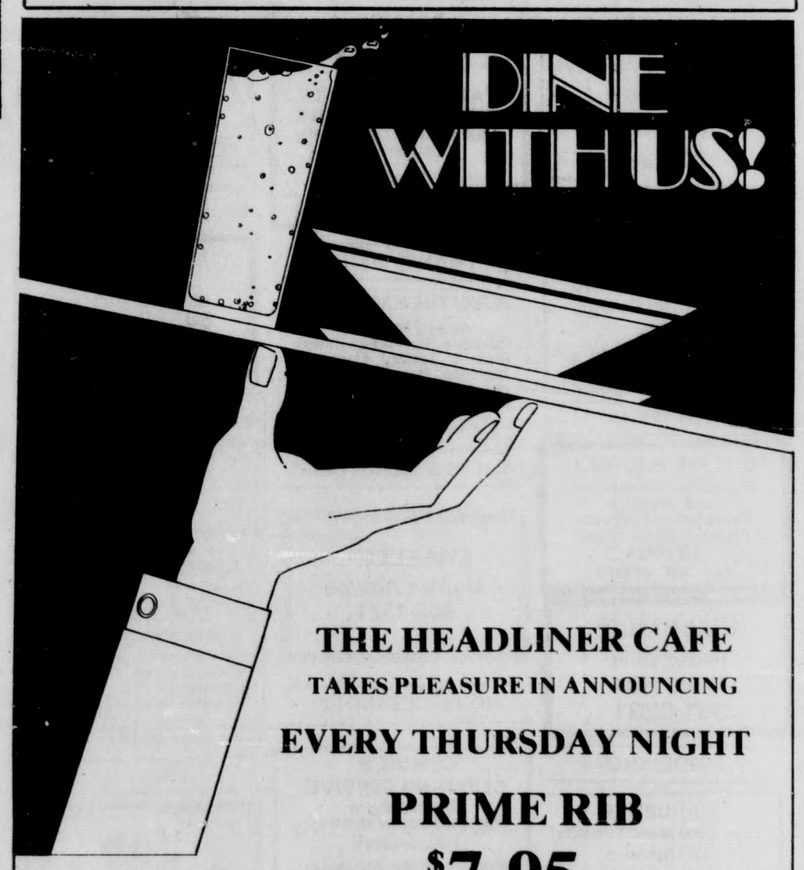

We'll waterproof the linens so food and drink stains are less damaging to them. They'll have the lovely look they always had but be safer.

As for your clothes, we'll give them our finest care. You'll look and feel like a million over the happy days of Thanksgiving.

It's easy. Just

Faith Lutheran

Advent heralds the beginning of the new Church Year. In the 10:30 a.m. Worship Hour at Faith Lutheran Church (corner of Hastings Ranch Drive and Sierra Madre Blvd.) this first Sunday in Advent is celebrated by welcoming to the pulpit as guest preacher the Rev. Kenneth Kilian, currently associated with Lutheran Bible Translators of Orange.

Guests and visitors are also welcome to join all members in a special 9 a.m. Christian Growth Hour. Rev. Kilian will be sharing the "Wheels" story with all the classes. This program is sponsored by Lutheran Bible Translators and helps provide transportation for missionaries working overseas. All are invited.

Congregational

Everyone is invited to the annual Thanksgiving Eve Service on Wednesday, Nov. 24 at 7 p.m. This is a traditional Congregational service accenting the Pilgrim's role in our heritage as Christian believers and is a time to come together as a body of believers to thank God for all He has done. We encourage you to wear Pilgrim or Indian costumes to highlight our Christian heritage.

Immediately following the Thanksgiving Eve Service, the congregation will meet in Pritchard Hall for refreshments consisting of pumpkin pie and cider.

On Saturday, Nov. 27 at 6 p.m., the College Fellowship will have its own Thanksgiving Dinner in Fellowship Hall.

Pastor Richard J. Anderson's sermon message for all three Sunday morning worship services at 8: 30, 9:45, and 11:15 a.m. on Nov. 28 is titled "From the Guttermost to The Uttermost." The Scriptural reference for his message is Hebrews, Chapter 11, verses 30 and 31.

The Sunday evening service at 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 28 will be a special time for "Answers from our Pastor." The congregation is being asked to submit questions concerning the Bible in advance of this service in order that Pastor Anderson can devote the full time of the service to deal with each question.

Trinity Presbyterian

On Sunday, Nov. 28, the first Sunday of Advent the first Advent candle will be lighted by Nadya Starr, Conrad and Hollace. The Rev. Barbara M. Stout will preach on "Promises to Keep." Agnes Sayles and a group of children will present a puppet show during Moments with the Children to highlight the way preparations for Christmas may be made in a way that is helpful to others. Mark Tidd and Geoff Pfaff will assist in the service.

Weekly events include: a meeting of the budget committee on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., a meeting of the newly formed women's group on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., a 6:30 a.m. meeting of Power Hour Wednesday morning, choir rehearsal at 7:40 p.m. on Thursday.

.....not only mine, but also all the people who didn't buy.

They always call while you're eating. They know it's hard to chew and say "no" at the same time.

They call at dinner because they know you'll be home. Which doesn't make sense. Why try to sell something to people who can't even afford to go out to eat.

They say, "We have a representative coming to your area." I say, "Good, tell him to bring some food with him because mine is getting cold."

Companies call you and say, "We'd just like to take a moment of your time," like it's no big deal. But you call them with a problem and you get 27 different answering machines.

They have no one to come to the phone because they're all tied up calling somebody who just sat down to eat.

Sports

From Behind the Wire

by Ed Colucci

If you had your windows open you could hear the roar come all the way up the hill. UCLA had just knocked off USC for the second time in the last three years. Why does it always come down to the last three seconds no matter who is winning the game to have a winner.

This time USC came out on the wrong end of the three seconds and UCLA still has a shot at the Rose Bowl bid. It was a great game and I stayed home to watch it on TV. Who wants to get in a traffic jam with a USC fan sitting next to you in the other car and you're singing "By the Blue Pacific Water." It could mean cuts and bruises on both sides. I can punch our my sister easy, she's an SC fan, but I run for cover when the other guy is 20 and about 6'4" or more.

Good game, good game and we should be proud of our two great football teams.

PHS might of lost a bit of school spirit but that's all they lost. They beat the pants off of little Newberry Park up near Ventura Friday night at PCC. PHS's crowd was yelled down by a small group of diehards that made the long drive to see their team so something against a power house team and it didn't happen . . . 33 - 0.

And again Arcadia took most of the night to win their game up at Santa Barbara. They had to wait for Steve Hisey to put one through the uprights to win it near the end of regular play. My spies at the St. Francis game told me it was a good one but the Knights just came up short in overtime. There are no ties in CIF play. Next year/next year.

The Muir Mustangs did O.K. against Hart, and let's hear it for the Wildcats from over in Monrovia.

The strike is over and now do I stay with the CIF playoffs or so I jump ship and split to the pros again or will they play any better than the high school kids. Maybe they now have something to prove to the paying public and will really pull out the stops and play like crazy for those play-off spots.

Local trout fishing has been poor of late but it should start to pick up shortly, which brings us to our fishing derby. Now's the time to start to work on those fishing stories. You can start sending them to me at the paper and we will look them over. I'll take ten winners and some local special guest along for a big day out on the lake, so get those stories down on paper and send them in soon.

See you on the street.

— BIG ED

Foot note:

Mose Henney broke his ankle up at Heasley Field playing softball. Mose, ol' pal, you shouldn't do that . . . it's only a game.
